The Center for Applied Policy in Education (CAP-Ed) is pleased to announce the symposium on Wednesday, April 17, 2013 featuring Dr. David Wiley and Sue Stickel on Open Source Material.

Dr. Wiley, Professor of Education at Brigham Young University and leader of Lumen Learning, is an expert in the field of open source material and online learning. Lumen Learning is an organization dedicated to supporting and improving the adoption of open educational resources by middle schools, high schools, community and state colleges, and universities.

Dr. Wiley is often sought by the media for his expert opinion on various issues related to education, technology, and openness. He has been involved in the Open High School of Utah, an online accredited free high school among other technology based projects.

Sue Stickel, Deputy Superintendent of the Sacramento County Office of Education in K-12 Curriculum and Intervention, has worked in education for nearly 35 years. Sue recently served as the project director for the California Academic Content Standards Commission. Recognized as a leader in K-12 curriculum, Sue is currently working with school districts and counties to assist with the implementation of the standards.

The symposium will be held at the Alpha Gamma Rho Hall in the UC Davis Alumni Center on the UC Davis Campus. Please contact us at CAP-Ed/CISI to RSVP or for more details. Ph: (530) 752-7178 or email: cisi@ucdavis.edu.

If you are interested in hosting 2013 Instructional Rounds Site Visits in your district, please contact the CAP-Ed Office for information: caped@ucdavis.edu. Thank you!