The Transformative Justice in Education (TJE) Center in the UC Davis School of Education presents

Transformative Justice in Education Workshop with

Roger Viet Chung

The Forbidden Trauma Project: Elementary and Incarcerated Intersections

Through the Forbidden Trauma Project from San Quentin's Restoring Our Original True Selves (ROOTS) Multicultural Program, this workshop will center the narratives of incarcerated people in disrupting the “migration to school to prison to deportation pipeline” by drawing on Ethnic Studies pedagogies, in combination with K-12 teacher practices. By reframing incarcerated experiences as forms of knowledge, we will explore, strategize and develop restorative justice based solutions together. This workshop will feature samples of incarcerated digital voice, written work from the ROOTS program participants, and the voices of formerly incarcerated individuals.

Roger Viet Chung is a lead instructor and curriculum developer of “Restoring Our Original True Selves” (ROOTS) Program in San Quentin State Prison and a core member of the Asian Prisoner Support Committee (APSC).
