Dr. Enrique García, Professor of Hispanic Visual Culture at Middlebury College, researches international Hispanic/Latinx genre cinema and comic books. He has published several journal articles, book chapters, and encyclopedia articles about comics and history. He has also published two academic books: Cuban Cinema After the Cold War and The Hernandez Brothers: Love, Rockets, and Alternative Comics. He is currently preparing his book on Puerto Rico and the Superhero Genre for publication.

Dr. John Jennings, Professor of Media and Cultural Studies at University of California, Riverside, is co-editor of the Eisner Award winning collection The Blacker the Ink: Constructions of Black Identity in Comics and Sequential Art, and a 2016 Nasir Jones Hip Hop Studies Fellow with the Hutchins Center at Harvard University. He co-authored Black Comix Returns with Damian Duffy, and illustrated the horror anthology Box of Bones and the best-selling graphic novel adaptation of Octavia Butler’s classic dark fantasy novel Kindred.
